

Abby's Testimony

I became a Christian about 1½ years ago. Until then it hadn't really hit; I couldn't comprehend how much God had done for me and is still doing for me, a sinner. But then after hearing some words from Jeremiah and asking a few questions it was like I got a big slap in the face, something just clicked. I finally understood that Jesus did die for me, a sinner and rise again; why? Well because of His unconditional love for me even though I'm a sinner. I still sin, but instead of condemning me for my sin, He helps me conquer sin.

I now understand why The Awesome God of the universe would send the only perfect being, besides Himself, who also happened to be His one and only Son, to take the punishment I deserve and then offer me a free gift of eternal life if only we believe, repent and be baptised in His name.

So that's what I'm doing; I'm believing, repenting and being baptised and I'm accepting His gift of eternal life.

Since becoming a Christian my life has been changed drastically by Jesus Christ. Not only do I think before I speak and act but He's provided me with a purpose; something that I can strive for, look towards to. There's no more aimless wondering for me, but instead striding purposely to achieve my goal provided by God and accessible through Christ's death and resurrection, and only through Jesus help can I get there.

My aim is to be like a stain glass window and let His love shine through me for everyone to see and I want to be a mirror reflecting all his grace, love and mercy. I want to let God mould me into who he wants me to be, I want to hand over the reigns and let Him take control of my life.
